The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) and the National Marine Fishery Service (NMFS) have reviewed this application and have no unresolved concerns.

These RGPs are not applicable when the proposed activity would adversely affect areas which possess historic, cultural, scenic, conservation or recreational values.

These RGPs were not found to be controversial or to have significant effect on the quality of the human environment. Neither were they found to be major Federal actions which would significantly affect the human environment, and hence, detailed statements under Section 102(2)(c) of the National Environment Policy Act of 1969 were not prepared.

The decision to modify/renew and issue these RGPs were based on evaluations of the probable impacts, including cumulative impacts, of the proposed activities and their intended use on public interest. These permits will not be contrary to the general public interest provided those availing themselves of the authority comply with the general and special conditions incorporated in the permits.
